From: Instrumentation Study Centre

Respected Sir/Madam,

On behalf of the 'Instrumentation Study Centre' I would like to inform you that we have organized a small training center in the field of electronics and instrumentation for the needy students. You may kindly visit our website www.instrumentationstudy.org . Its objective, outcome, mode of operation, style of functioning, and source of fund etc. have been mentioned in detail as far as possible.

Basically this is a self sponsored, low budget programme. Apart from our regular teaching and research we try to do this work. Around 50 students may be trained in our homely environment every year. But we believe that except the training of 50 students, some of our ideas may be useful to develop a general awareness in the field of electronics and instrumentation of our society. In that sense our activity has a broader meaning. We do not take fees from the students. To run this centre, except our own contribution we accept donation against some services from this centre. Sometimes we approach people to consider different services from us which may be useful for them. This earning will be useful to create facilities for this educational programme. We have different services as mentioned.

It will be highly appreciable if you kindly sponsor any items or one/two students in our programme. It will be your contribution in enriching our future generation. We assure you that we will be sincere enough to use your contribution properly.

It is our expectation that one day you may visit our centre.

With best regards,

Yours sincerely,

Pallab Das (on behalf of the Centre)

NB :

We have tried to explain our activity as far as possible. Our group members also go and present the difference aspects that has been mentioned in this site including their own work to the interested people/audience. We will try to response to the audience if anyone arrange some lectures/talk. Generally this is a one hour talk presented by several speakers. Different problems of this field, its present situation and possibilities as well as its social impact are being addressed. Particular topic, within our capability, will be selected according to the choice of the audience. Already delivered talk is mentioned in the "Activity" menu of this site.
